

Marathon training: Celebrate Your Style 5k

August 15, 9:29 PM · Talia Peery - Baltimore Running Fitness Examiner

Celebrate Your Style 5k race which will be held in Hunt Valley, MD on Saturday August 29 is more than just your regular 5k. The proceeds of this race go towards providing free workshops to children in Maryland's public and private schools. These free workshops are provided by CREATE Everyday Geniuses, a nonprofit organization.

The mission of CREATE Everyday Geniuses is to help children understand that genius isn't just having a 4.0 grade point average or more smiley stickers on your homework than anyone else. Intelligence presents in many different ways. By providing a different way of looking at what being smart really means children walk away from the workshops appreciating their own uniqueness and realizing that they too are everyday geniuses.

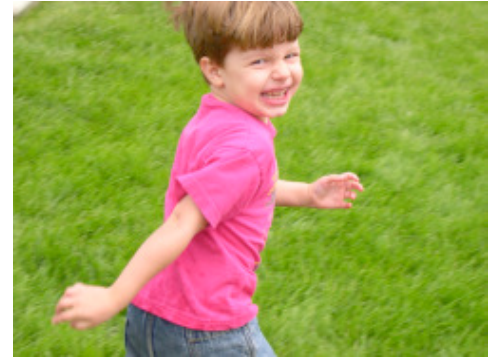

As seemingly more and more of our children are diagnosed with learning disabilities every year it is even more important that children still feel that they can contribute to the world in which they live. Being identified as a child with a learning disability doesn't mean that you aren't smart. CREATE Everyday Geniuses helps children to not only realize this but to revel it in and celebrate their differences.

You can also form a team by becoming a team leader and recruiting 20 or more people to race on your team. In addition to recruiting and organizing your team you will also be holding a fundraising event in support of CREATE Everyday Geniuses. If you recruit the most racers and raise the most money you will receive the 2009 "Celebrate Your Style" Team Leader Award.

There will be an after race party sponsored by Hightopps Backstage Grill that is looking like an especially fun time.

By participating in Celebrate Your Style 5k you are providing an opportunity for the future generation to live up to their potential. And just in case you runners out there need another reason this is a great warm-up to the Annapolis 10 Miler which is held the very next day. So come on out and Celebrate Your Style!
